He hoped to see its sandy beaches and sunny skies. But what Moysan fancied most was introducing the West Coast to the famous cuisine of his native country.

Today that young boy's fervent wish has become a reality.

Moysan is head chef and part owner of Le Bistro, 1964 W. Foothill Blvd., in Upland.

The 32-year-old began preparing authentic French fare for locals four years ago.

"I decided to open a restaurant in Upland because Los Angeles was too crowded," he said. "I thought a French restaurant would do well here."

Although business was slow in the beginning, things are picking up, Moysan said.

"It took some time, but, yes, we are doing better," he said.

Moysan came to this country eight years ago.

"I love it," he said. "I don't miss home. Believe me, if I didn't like it here, I would go back."

He grew up in Rennes a northwest city in France in the province of Brittany and began cooking when he was 16.

"I love to cook," he said. "I was born into it. My parents and grandparents were both chefs."

For three years Moysan interned as a cook at a large hotel in Rennes.

After his apprentiship, Moysan turned down an offer by his parents to take over their restaurant and hotel to come to this country.

Cooking French cuisine for Amercians has not been easy.

Most people here have a difficult time handling the rich, true

buttery, delicate French dishes. But they are becoming more aware and are learning to appreciate the cuisine, Moysan said.

"The food we serve here is more authentic French cuisine than continental," he said. "We use lots of heavy cream and butter."

In order to satisfy those dietconscious patrons, Moysan has learned to use a little less butter and salt in his food.

"People here are very demanding," he said. "We try to satisfy those needs."

He has also added hamburgers to the menu.

"That is for all the little children," he said. "They are not so familiar with our dishes so we have to appease them."

It has also been difficult getting used to having seasonal fruits and vegetables yearround, Moysan said.

Moysan said he cooks about 80 to 120 meals on weekdays during the winter and 90 to 140 meals on weekends.

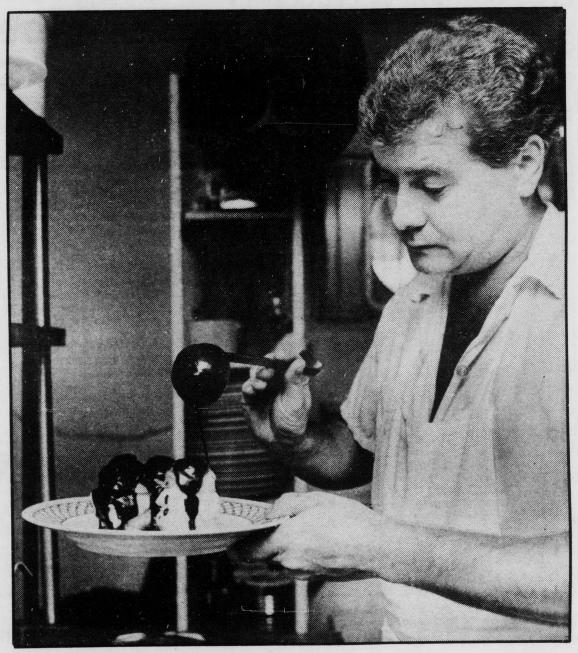

In the summertime those numbers are a little less because of the heat and vacations, he said.

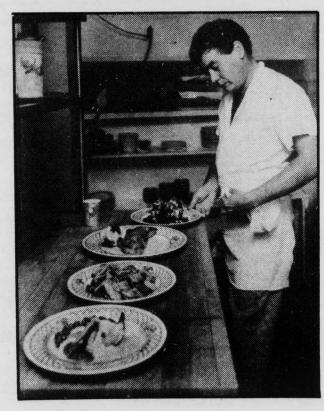

Although he cooks timeconsuming, complicated dishes for his patrons, Moysan's own needs are simple — a nice steak, some sauce and a salad.

Those simple, but delicious meals are not prepared by Moysan. They are cooked by his wife, Monica.

"I never cook at home," he said. "I have to cook all day here, so when I get home I am very tired."

Le Bistro is open from 11:30 ° a.m. to 2:30 p.m. for lunch and from 5:30 to 10 p.m. for dinner every Tuesday through Sunday. □

Sidewalks of downtown Upland become colorful

By Kimberly Heinrichs

The sidewalks of Upland's downtown shopping area were brighter than usual for a few days.

That's because 95 young people gathered last Thursday to add some color to the pavement and walk away with a prize or two.

The Upland Recreation Department held a sidewalk chalk-art contest with gift certificate prizes donated by the Upland Town Center
Merchants Association.

The colorful squares, many filled with hearts and rainbows, will last a few days before they fade away, said Chris Worland.

Each of the street artists, ranging in age from 3 to 17, had a block to fill, although some spilled over into surrounding squares. Designs ranged from the colorful scribbles of a young artist who looked like he lost interest halfway through, to a sophisticated poster-like creation which proclaimed, "Cruise California."

Jason Anderson, 17, of Upland won first prize in the 12-and-up category for the California art which pictured a 1929 woody and a 1932 roadster in front of a colorful background. Anderson's younger brothers and sisters

$40,000 science lab to be built at Middle School

By Marianne Aiken

A new, $40,000 science lab will be built at Rancho Cucamonga Middle School in time for fall.

Bids were opened at Wednesday's Cucamonga School District board meeting, said Superintendent John Costello.

The new science lab will feature seven lab stations, with room for five students to work at each station, Costello said.

"It will be turned into a full science lab," with water and gas hook-ups at each station, he said.

There also will be lecture space with permanent seating for 35 students.

"For the teacher, there'll be a demonstration table with a mirror and all the appropriate accouterments he needs to show the students how to do the experiments," Costello said.

The new lab is expected to be done by Sept. 1.

The district has a number of other renovation projects planned, Costello said.

The board took bids for the recarpeting of Guasti, Cucamonga, and Los Amigos schools

Landscaping contracts were awarded for the entry way of Cucamonga School and for relocateable classrooms at Los Amigos School

The district will also begin a program to completely refurnish all its schools, two classrooms at a time.

"Every year we'll buy a set number of full rooms of furniture for each school," Costello said. "The district hasn't replaced furniture in many, many years."

Shelly Renee Roney has been accepted in the graduate school at the University of California.

She received a bachelor of arts degree in behavioral science at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona in June.

She also was awarded the 1985 Bruce Zink Memorial Scholarship. She is the daughter of Alton and Pat Roney of Upland.

About 840 degrees have been awarded in commencement ceremonies at the University of the Pacific campus in Stockton.

Belinda Abramsky of Upland received her doctorate degree in pharmacy.

Jill Rasmussen, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jack D. Rasmussen of Upland, graduated from the University of Southern California. She received a bachelor of science degree in public administration and she was valedictorian of her class in the school of public administration. She was the recepient of the Emery J. Olson Award and she received a Dean's Letter of Merit.

She has been accepted into the public administration intergovernmental management master's program at USC, which she will begin in the fall.

Lisa Gray-Rehfeld received her bachelor of science degree from Azusa Pacific University in May, majoring in information systems.

She graduated cum laude and became a member of "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." She is a 1982 graduate of Alta Loma High School and is the daughter of Hayward and Carilyn Gray of Alta Loma.

More than 1,800 students at California State University Fresno have been included on the dean's list for the 1986 spring semester.

Evelyn Deboer of Ontario had a perfect 4.0 grade point average. Also included on the list was Craigh Cornwell of Upland.

Fire district grapples with rapid R.C. growth

By Andrew Horan

The Foothill Fire Protection District is working double-time to keep pace with Rancho Cucamonga's rapid growth.

Last week the district moved forward with two plans it hopes will help: It implemented a special tax on property owners in the eastern half of the city and decided to continue studying the feasibility of merging with the city.

Sandra Neeley, a consultant with Anaheim-based Willdan

Assoc., told directors that the tax, which will appear on this year's bills, will raise a minimum of $686,000 a year.

Authorization for the tax was approved by voters in a special election in December.

The figure will increase as roughly 4,700 acres of vacant land in the area are developed, she said.

Property owners in an area roughly bordered by Highland Avenue on the north, Haven Avenue on the west, Etiwanda Avenue on the east and Fourth Street on the south will pay $64 per dwelling unit, according to Foothill Chief L. Dennis Michael.

The figure varies slightly for apartment, commercial and industrial properties, although the higher-density uses will pay

Upland scraps redevelopment for corner of Ninth and Central

By Kimberly Heinrichs

Upland has scrapped a redevelopment project for the corner of Ninth Street and Central Avenue, but it may go ahead with an alternative plan to improve the intersection.

City Manager Lee Travers told the City Council last week that planning for the project had cost the city a substantial amount in staff time and consultant fees, but he could not say how much.

The city decided against the project because the county was reluctant to be involved in a redevelopment project there, City Engineer Fred Blanchard said

The county and other taxing agencies must agree to donate their share of redevelopment tax money in order for such a project to be developed.

"The county felt that it was quite an expensive approach to take," said county Transportation Director Michael Walker

Presently Ninth street splits in two in the county area as it meets Central Avenue. In an island in the middle of the two lanes is a plant store. The redevelopment area was considered by the city to clear up traffic and parking problems.

However, Walker said that the cost of moving The Plant Safari, 1993A W. 9th St., would have been $200,000 to $300,000. The city's plan was to sell about $1 million in bonds in order to pay off the moving costs until the increased taxes from redevelopment started coming in, he said. They could be used to repay the bonds.

Men honored for 50 years with Boy

By Suzanne Sproul

John B. "Jack" Atwood and Raymond "Bud" Smith have lots of fond memories of the Boys Scouts of America.

Both West Valley men have devoted 50 years of service to the organization that stresses individual pride and patriotism.

Recently the Old Baldy Council honored them.

Atwood, owner of Atwoods' department store in downtown Upland, received the Distinguished Eagle Award, the highest honor an Eagle Scout can receive. It is bestowed upon a man who has been an Eagle Scout for at least 25 years and has distinguished himself with professional and personal efforts in the community and in youth programs.

"The award I received wasn't necessarily for my being active in scouting. It was more for my community involvement and my being an Eagle Scout," Atwood

"Don't sell yourself short," Smith told Atwood with a

"Oh, I haven't been the active scouter Bud has been," Atwood responded.

Atwood started in scouting when he joined Troop 3 of Upland's First Presbyterian Church in the early 1930s. He later earned the title Eagle Scout in 1938. Through the years he has been involved in every aspect of scouting.

Smith joined scouting in 1937, with Troop 1 in Pomona, and stayed with the troop until 1951 when he became it's scoutmaster. He has been a patrol leader, senior patrol leader, quartermaster and staff member at Camp Tulakes.

He received the Vigil Award of the Order of the Arrow and is a recipient of the District Award of Merit and the Silver Beaver Award.

"I had polio in my right arm when I was young. I wanted to be an Eagle Scout but I couldn't because of certain Eagle requirements like swimming," Smith said. "But I've tried to help others out like people did for me when I was a new Scout. It's reciprocal, I think. The 'paycheck' one gets from scouting is the contacts and friendships you make."

Smith never had a son, but he said the most outstanding relationship a boy and his father could have comes through scouting.

"When a father is a scoutmaster and the boy is a Scout and they go through everything together. That's just great," Smith said.

The following scholarships have been awarded:

The Work Experience
Coordinators in the Chaffey
Joint Union High School District recently announced 1985-86
recipients of the Control Data Institute scholarships. Brian
McConnell, a Chaffey High School graduate, will received a full scholarship, while Stacey Dixon and John Hall, both graduates of Montclair High School, will receive working scholarships.

Last year's recipients, chosen from all the Work Experience students in the Chaffey District, have just graduated from the Control Data Institute, which is located in Montclair. Lyron Andrews received a full scholarship while a senior at Montclair High School. Michael Hawkins, a 1985 graduate of Etiwanda High School, completed his course of studies on a working scholarship and has recently been employed by Dial One Precision Systems in Riverside as customer service technician.

Winners of Shirley Vanderpool Memorial Scholarship given by Melody Makers of Ontario were $400 to William Adams of Alta Loma and $200 to Debra Anderson of Fontana.

The scholarships are awarded annually to piano and voice students of Chaffey College.

Jerry Fulwood, assessment revenue coordinator for the city of Rancho Cucamonga, will receive the Margaret King Gibbs scholarship award to continue his studies in public administration at Cal State, San Bernardino.

The award, given annually to a student in the Master of Public Administration program for outstanding contribution to public service education, honors a retired faculty member, Dr. Gibbs, a resident of Claremont.

Catholic Daughters of the Americas, Court Our Lady of Fatima No. 1387, has awarded scholarships to four local girls who will be attending Pomona Catholic High School and St. Lucy's Priory in September. Recipients of the scholarships were Stacy Galang, Elissa Fernandez, Alicia Alcala and Christina Jones. The awards were based on grade point average and involvement in their Christian communities.

Mt. San Antonio College's Home Economics Department presented 28 awards, including scholarships totaling $1,000, at its annual departmental awards program in May.

The local winner was Glenna Miles of Alta Loma who received the AHEA Foothill District membership.

Benson Avenue intersection hazardous

By Kimberly Heinrichs

Nancy Kellner only has her driving permit so far, but she drives down Benson Avenue in Upland several times a week and she is concerned.

When Benson Avenue was opened north of 18th Street in May, after being closed since December 1984, she noticed that cars pulling out of 18th Street still behaved as if Benson was

"People here often seem to forget that there will be cars scooting along from the north," the 15-year-old said, pointing to where the brand-new road was opened recently. Before May, Benson deadended at 18th so motorists turning onto Benson knew that traffic would have to stop, she said. Now that the road is open, Benson traffic often hits speeds up to 60 mph, creating a dangerous situation, she said.

"It's almost like a highway," she said of the new two-lane blacktopped Benson, which has no stop signs or stoplights coming south to slow motorists.

"This really is the first major intersection coming out of a freeway-like mode," Kellner said.

"I've seen numerous people almost pull out when a car is coming from the south and if that happens when someone was coming from the north also, it would be a big mess." she

Indeed, during the 20 minutes

Kellner was being interviewed at the intersection there were two near-misses

The Upland High School junior brought the situation to the attention of the City Council last week when she attended the meeting to meet a requirement for her summer school government class.

Pornography report viewed differently

By Kimberly Heinrichs

A local anti-pornography activist sees the Attorney General's Commission on Pornography report as a victory for his side, but area distributors don't think it will have much

'My first response is amen, and my second is it's high time,"said Richard Fortyune, president of Communities Against Pornography, which has been fighting adult businesses in the area, particularly Upland's T&A Video store.

"This will give us fuel," said Fortyune of the 2,000-page document released last week which reports a link between pornography and sex crimes. "I think it will add ammunition. We will bring it to the (Upland) City Council.

Upland will use the commission's findings to back up its proposed adult entertainment ordinance, City Attorney Don Maroney said. The findings on a link between pornographic material and crime can be used as evidence of the harmful effects of the material, he said.

The report also urges law enforcement agencies to crack down on adult businesses and asks Congress and state legislatures to create stricter laws

But Jaime Gomez, manager of The Wherehouse in Upland, which has a separate section for X-rated videos, thinks the report's effects will be shortlived. He compared it to an earlier attempt to put warning labels on record albums.

'It made some headlines for a couple weeks, but in the long run nothing happened. I kind of think that will happen here, Gomez said. "I don't think it'll ever come down to someone saying you can't rent or buy this

T&A Video attorney Roger Diamond agreed that the effects will be limited. He said that it might assist people in convincing their district attorneys to press charges against stores on obscenity grounds.

"It might lead them to file charges, but I don't think it will lead to convictions," Diamond said. "The laws are the same and the courts are the same and, more importantly, the Constitution is the same."

"The commission may say it wants something to be done, but if it's against the Constitution, the Constitution would have to be changed to eliminate or change the way we look at First Amendment rights," agreed Montclair's Deputy City Attorney Dennis Krueger.

Earlier this week, he presented the Montclair City Council with an adult entertainment ordinance similar to the one Upland is proposing. But because city laws cannot deal t's for horses only," Lynette Edelson said, pointing to a new riding trail in Alta Loma. The trail, which riders call simply "the woods," after the new housing development it borders, starts at a point off Hermosa Avenue nearly a half-mile north of Hillside Avenue.

Where the horses roam

The trail is closer to the foothills and Cucamonga peak than the burgeoning city below.

The sound of silence is deafening.

The trail skirts through heavy woods, and riders often travel up the hills in search of more interesting scenery.

Deer sightings are not uncommon.

In fact, on a recent sunny morning, three mule deer ambled across Hermosa before darting for cover in the dried bush and tall grass of the foothills.

Other than a diamond-shaped sign bearing a horse and rider, and tell-tale piles of manure, there is nothing distinctive to mark the trail's entry point.

Riders like keeping a low profile on the trail

"The trail is designed so that motorcycles and trucks can't get on it," Edelson said.

Nevertheless, motorcycle-riding youth have been known to tear up and down the paths, terrorizing horses and riders alike.

It is illegal for motorcyclists to use the trails — most trails have "no motorcycle" warning signs posted at entrances — but sheriff's deputies have a difficult time enforcing the rule.

Still, "anybody can call the 'trail abusers in," Edelson said, "and there are a lot of people who will."

Convicted trail abusers face a $500 fine.

While the woods trail is not readily visible, riders know it is there.

"You always find people out riding," said Edelson, publicity director of the Alta Loma Riding Club.

"Everyone has their own time to ride," added fellow rider Sean Richards.

There may be plenty of riders on the trails, but "it's not crowded," Edelson said.

"You still have plenty of room to yourself," she added with a laugh.

"They've just split" one of the lower trails, she said, "so people can walk along one side and ride on the other."

The most popular horses among trail riders are quarter-horses and Arabians, according to Edelson and Richards.

"Quarter horses are your working horse," said Richards' wife, Tara.

"They're the stocky, 'cowboy' horse," Edelson chipped in.

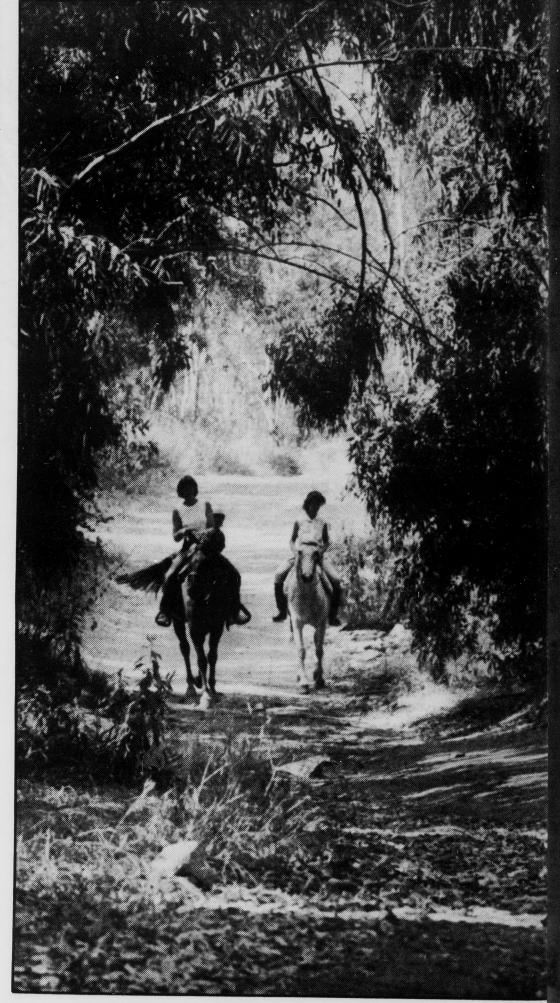

"A lot of people use the Arabians for show, and they're the best for endurance," Mrs. Richards explained.

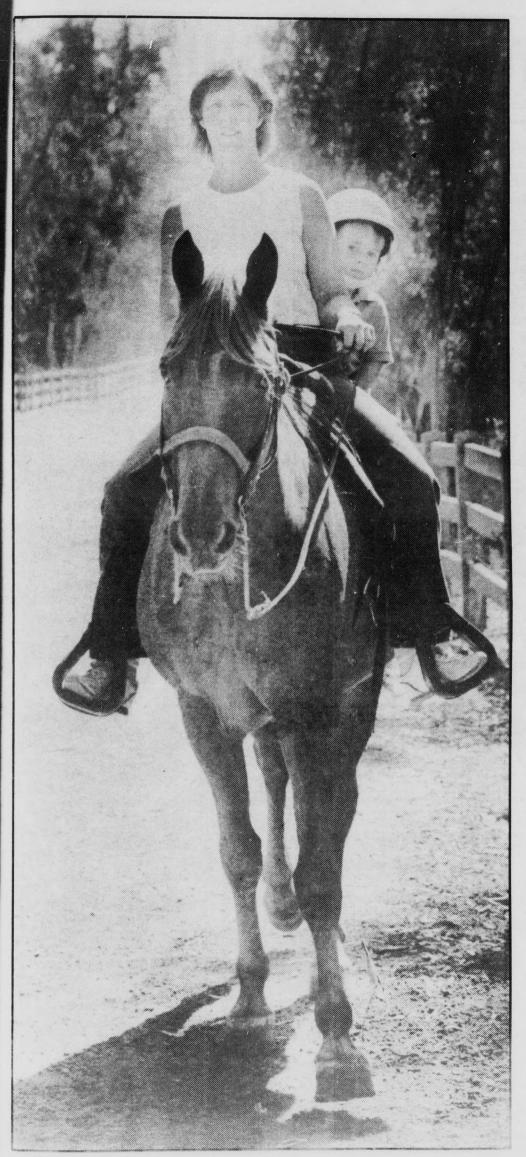

"They have one less vertabrae and large nostrils, so they can breathe real well," Edelson explained.

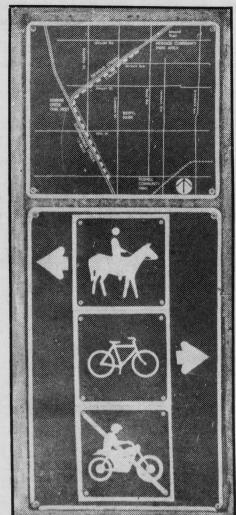

That comes in handy when the horses have to strain uphill or go on long trips.

But for the most part, Alta Loma riders stay close to home.

The next big gathering for Alta Loma Riding Club members — and anyone who might like to join them — is a family "Playday picnic" July 27.

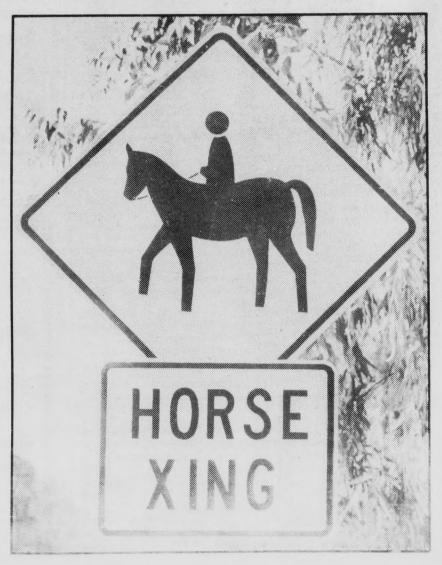

Alta Loma's horse trails, like these are designed for horses only. Jonathon Richards (opposite page, far left), strapped on his safety helmet before riding with his mother, Tara Richards, and 11-year-old Jodi Edelson on another path, (opposite page). Signs warn motorists of crossings (below), and motorcyclists to stay off the paths (left).

directly with the content of adult stores - which is protected by free speech rights unless judged obscene by the courts - he said the report would probably not affect the ordinance.

A Rancho Cucamonga

psychologist who testified at the Montclair hearing on the proposed ordinance said that some studies back up the Meese Commission's linking of X-rated material and crime.

"In adults we find that pornography makes them less tolerant of women, less sympathetic toward women's stories of rape. Under some circumstances it makes them angry toward women," said Benedict Cooley. "It creates in the mind of the viewer the idea that sexual violence is OK.

Cooley said that pornography often is involved in the cases of child molestation he deals with, but he said he cannot draw a direct link himself. Still, he feels the material is damaging even for children to view the girls would be making the trip Oct. 5-19 instead.

We were really stunned. because the last we heard, there was no money coming back and there was no way to reschedule," she said.

Abila will attend as one of 20 adult counselors in the Children As Teachers of Peace mission, which will feature 40 child peace ambassadors.

The group will visit Russian schools, visit the home of Soviet artist Valerie Kosorukov, give a letter from American astronauts to Russian cosmonauts, go to a popular Soviet resort and plant flowers with Soviet children.

There will also be a broadcast of John Denver singing with the American children in Russia.

On the last day we're in Moscow, we're going to invite the children we've met there to Gorky Park, and release kites that we've made there," Abila

In May, prospects for rescheduling the trip looked pretty dismal. The Soviets and innair were holding the money the Americans had paid for the trip, and Abila wasn't sure whether she would get back any of the $10,000 she paid. She got the money for the trip by remortgaging her house.

The peace ambassadors found out the trip was cancelled three days before they were supposed to leave

But the Soviet-American Travel Bureau was able to work things out and reschedule the trip

'Everyone has cooperated," Abila said. "What they're doing is forwarding the funds. We won't have to pay the penalties. All we have to do is apply for a new visa.

Identical triplets Becky, Stacy, and Jenny will be 12 years old and in the seventh grade at Alta Loma Junior High School by the time they make the trip.

Abila found out March 31 that she and her daughters were accepted for the mission, which turned out to be an expensive proposition, at $2,500 a head.

She said she was inspired to apply to make the trip in February, after meeting author Gerald Jampolski, who established "Chilren As Teachers of Peace," based in Tiburon in 1982

Jampolski is the author of 'Love is Letting Go of Fear," and "Teach Only Love."

"We still hope to get on (the) Tom Snyder (show) when we get back and we're still looking for sponsors," Abila said

Anyone wishing to help out with the cost of the trip should contact Abila at the math department of Rio Hondo College, (213) 692-0921, extension 280.

The flag, which has flown over the Capitol Building in Washington, D.C., was presented to the hospital by Rep. Jerry Lewis, R-Redlands.

City Engineer Fred Blanchard told the council that the engineering department agreed that the intersection could become a problem and added that staff has been watching it.

Blanchard said Wednesday that the city has been keeping traffic counts. However, he said it still is too early to do something about the intersection.

For starters, Blanchard said he expects Benson to eventually get 10 times more traffic than it has now. That increased use, as more motorists discover that the road is open, could change the situation, he said.

"We really want to make sure that the traffic pattern is developed enough so that we're really seeing what's going on,' he said. "(To act now) could be a waste of money, but even worse it might make the situation worse.'

Mr. Sigaloff-"You've Been Challenged"

Ole's- "You've Been Beat"

Champs proved Legion experts right

Braves truly are tourney powerhouse

Throughout the tournament, talk floated around about how Rancho Cucamonga was a "tournament team." And that's what had the people Rancho Cucamonga entered the 26th Upland Fourth of July American Legion Baseball Tournament struggling. The Braves were there only because they are always there - they didn't figure to challenge.

Entered were two strong teams from Northern California -- North Sacramento and Sunnyvale: West Covina, which finished third in the 1985 Legion World Series and the Fullerton Angels, an always powerful team featuring the best high school players from North Orange County. Plus, traditional favorites Upland and Ontario. Rancho had never won a Fourth of July tournament.

But, after four days of the competition punishing one another, Rancho Cucamonga won the title, defeating Fullerton at its own game, 12-8, in the championship game.

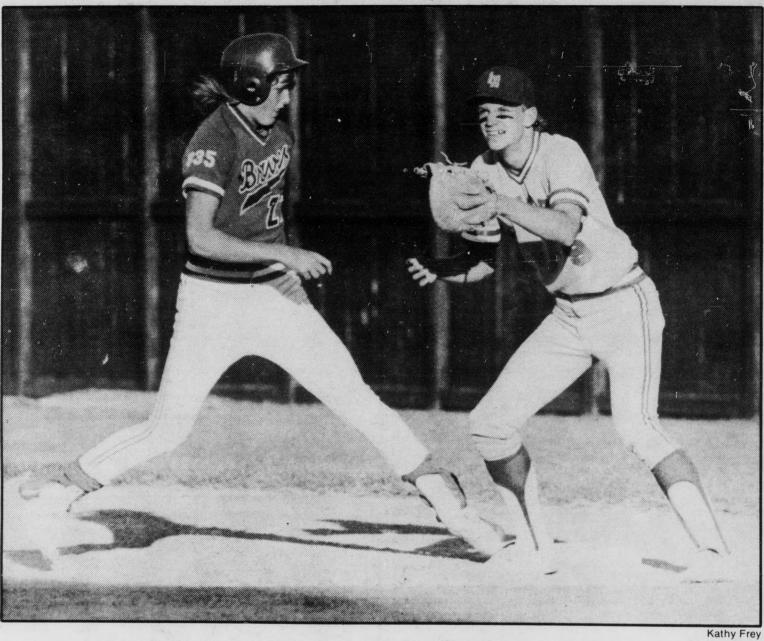

"We've been struggling," Rancho coach Randy Valasek said during the tournament. "We're just now starting to get some continuity.

Their trio of pitchers Clint Schuster, Mike Shaw and Steve Dye - threw complete games to advance Rancho to the final round. Fittingly, the three combined to stop Fullerton in the championship.

Before then, the Braves quietly, but not unadventureously, crept their way into the final day.

On Saturday, the Braves survived their first two games to make to the semifinals. In the first round, Schuster held off a seventh-inning Pomona rally to win, 4-3. It was Pomona who beat West Covina for the consolation championship.

In the second round, Shaw homered and put together a complete game as Rancho snuck into the semifinals with a 7-2 victory over Montclair.

Rancho Cucamonga's Matt Bullock leaps back to first safely as La Habra's Jim Wright awaits the throw in tourney play.

That's when the wispers started.

"They always do this in the tournaments," Upland manager Ray Baker said as Rancho Cucamonga took infield prior to its semifinal matchup with La Habra.

"They're a good tournament team; always are," another observer said to Baker.

All around the press box, everyone agreed - of the four semifinalists (Rancho, Upland, Fullerton and La Habra), Rancho was the one to watch.

Up to that point, however, the ones to watch as far as offense was concerned was the Fullerton Angels. They had pounded opponents through the first three rounds, scoring 33 runs in the three games. Home runs they had hit at Ontario were being talked about back at Upland

"Was he the one who hit the homers yesterday?' someone asked as a Fullerton player put one over the fence in the Angels semifinal rout of Upland.

"Nope. That was the next guy," another answered, pointing to the on deck hitter.

Before anyone knew better, the assault was on and Fullerton had taken an 8-0 lead over Upland in the semis on its way to an 8-5 win.

Rancho's semifinal win was just the opposite. The Braves got a good bounce here, a break there, and found themselves in the finals.

They took a 1-0 lead in the second when Shaw's fly ball fell just out of the reach of a La Habra outfielder for a double. He scored on the first of two RBI singles by Mike Collins, the Rancho catcher who was named Most Valuable Player of the tournament.

After falling behind, 2-1, Rancho came back to take the lead with another near miss. Frank Torrez tied the game with what looked like a double play ball. But his bouncer stayed up in the air long enough get into right field and tie the game. Collins then gave the Braves a lead they would never lose.

"That's the kind of game that brings a team together," Valasek said after the semifinal victory. "That's what we need. We've been playing like individuals lately. This kind of game can make us a team."

Dye, a hard thrower a year ago, is a pitcher now. He was the winner against La Habra.

Another Fullerton home run against Rancho in the final put the Angels out in front early again and ended talk of Rancho Cucamonga being a tournament team.

But then the Braves struck, and struck again. They scored eight times in one inning and Fullerton became the victims as Rancho Cucamonga, that tournament team, won its first Upland Fourth of July Tournament.

"I've never thought of us like that," Valasek said.

In addition, Walker said Upland would have spent another $250,000 in gas tax money to finish the project improvements — roads, curbs, etc.

Instead, the county offered a counter proposal.

"We would be willing to do the roadwork if the city handled the relocation (of the plant store) as a straight cost, not going into debt," he said, adding that Upland could use its gas tax money for the relocation.

Although the county would be spending money — instead of just not receiving money with the original plan — Walker said it made more sense. Blanchard said Upland would Blanchard said Upland would spend about the same amount on the county's proposal as it would have on the original plan. He said the project is still in the discussion stage. However, Travers said the Ninth and Central area is no longer a priority.

"We did try to get it set up and it just got mushier and mushier as it it went along," he said, explaining that the property owners seemed to change their minds back and forth on the project.

Wayne Wicoff, owner of The Plant Safari, offered no comment.

The county administrative office also had a problem with the project because it felt its scope was not big enough for a redevelopment area, explained analyst Mike Van Mouwerik.

and woman starting group for the disabled

By Suzanne Sproul

Patty McFarlane is on a crusade

The 30-year-old Upland woman is trying to start a new group, the American Disabled People's Alliance.

'For years people have been telling me I couldn't do things because I'm not strong enough. I wanted to be a speech therapist and was told I couldn't. I wanted to be a doctor and was told I wasn't strong enough. I wanted to be a physical therapist and a nurse and was told the jobs were too strenuous.

'All the while I've had doors slammed in my face. After awhile it gets doggone frustrating. I don't believe in discrimination, segregation or isolation," McFarlane said.

McFarlane was born with cerebral palsy and is a quasiparaplegic. Despite her handicaps, she said, her memory and mind "work just fine."

"My memory and mind are all that works. If I'm not allowed to use these I might as well be dead. That sounds drastic but it's true. A lot of people choose to ignore the handicapped, but I say that's too bad because I'm alive, and I'm going to stay here," she said.

Most of McFarlane's energies now are aimed at promoting the new organization. The group's goal is to help abolish all employment prejudice against the disabled. Its theme is "We the people of the ADPA, wish to make a difference. We are here

She has a meeting scheduled in September at Upland Cascade Mobile Home Park, where she

'I'm hoping that 50 or 60 people will show up at the meeting," she said. "I'm hoping for the best. If no one comes, it won't stop me. I'm not the quitting type. I've faced disappointment all my life. I'm just praying and keeping my fingers crossed."

She said she hopes to have West Valley handicapped people and supporters sign 1,000 petitions asking President Reagan to address the problems of the disabled. She's determined to discuss the plight with the president.

She wrote to the president in January, "We are proposing an apprenticeship program in all professions so the disabled will have an opportunity to demonstrate their ability regardless of their appearance I am also requesting in this proposal that we be recognized by the government's financial backing and appropriate legislation.'

McFarlane said ideally she would love to see handicapped people in all professions. particularly in medicine, law, the clergy and as astronauts.

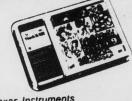

All the handicapped need is a chance, she said.

The West Valley's largest high school district is going to become even larger.

The Chaffey Joint Union High School District board of trustees last Monday passed a resolution to execute agreements to buy about $12.1 million in certificates of participation, to help buy land for two more high schools, one in Rancho Cucamonga and one in southeast Ontario.

Superintendent Mike D. Dirksen said $8 million of the loan will be used for the acquisition of the high school sites, and the rest would be used for more minor items like school buses and data processing equipment.

"We don't know just where the sites are, specifically," Dirksen said. "Ideally, we're looking at a site in Rancho Cucamonga, somewhere midpoint between Etiwanda and Alta Loma high schools, due south of Chaffey College. The other one would be in the Mountain View School District."

Mountain View district has two elementary schools and an intermediate school.

There are currently nine high schools in the Chaffey district, with 14,500 students expected to enroll next fall in Upland, Ontario, Montclair, Etiwanda and Alta Loma

SAN BERNARDINO FWY

By Patrick McGreevy

A race is on in the desert to see which one of two competing political factions will be the first to collect enough signatures to split off a new county from San Bernardino County.

What started out earlier this year as complementary efforts by two groups to create two new counties that could coexist has turned into a bitter contest.

Because the two proposed new counties overlap, the two groups now believe that only the first group to collect enough signatures to qualify the issue for the ballot will have it's proposal

"Unfortunately, it's turned into a race to see who finishes first," said Yucca Valley stockbroker Frank Fleck, head of the group seeking to create "Joshua Tree County" out of 9,535-square-mile area including Yucca Valley, Morongo Valley, Joshua Tree, Twentynine Palms, Amboy, Landers

"If they had respected our boundaries we could have both gone to the voters," Fleck said. But their boundries overlap ours so it'll probably be whoever finishes first that gets the new county. If they overlap there's some question about whether two governor's commissions could be formed to study the competing counties."

The process for creating a new county requires a group of citizens to collect the signatures of 25 percent of the registered voters in the area proposed for the new county.

Once the petitions are certified as valid, the governer then must create a commission including residents from the new and existing counties to study the financial feasibility of creating a new government jurisdiction.

In the end, a majority of the voters in the proposed county and the existing county would each have to approve the secession.

Fleck's group, which consists of political and business leaders dissatisfied with the share of taxes and political representation received by the desert, started circulating petitions first on April

They have until Oct. 21 to collect 5,769 signatures and they have set a target of 6,500 signatures, which Fleck said he expects will be reached in a matter of weeks.

"We have just reached the 4,000 mark," Fleck said. "I don't foresee any problems but we're not going to be complacent. We're getting off our butts and finishing first.'

The other group, led by Victorville City Councilman Mike Rothschild, is seeking to create a new jurisdiction to be called "Mojave County" to contain 19,000-square-miles of desert that would include areas also proposed for "Joshua Tree County" such as Needles.

The Mojave County backers also feel the desert communities are not receiving services valued at the same level as the taxes they pay out to the administrators in San Bernardino.

Rothschild's group began circulating petitions May 20 and has until Nov. 21 to collect the signatures of 19,000 registered voters in the new

San Bernardino, Riverside counties begin ID program

By Patrick McGreevy

SAN BERNARDINO - The county Board of Supervisors took final action last week to begin a computerized fingerprint identification program with Riverside County called CAL-ID.

The supervisors approved the agreement with Riverside County and the $260,257 first-year funding for the program as well as authorization to purchase the computer equipment.

'We're about to take a monumental step into the future with CAL-ID," Sheriff Floyd Tidwell told the board.

Tidwell predicted that "several thousand" additional criminal cases will be cleared each year by allowing a computer system centralized in Sacramento to match fingerprints found at crime scenes with those on file.

The system is credited with having identified

Night Stalker supsect Richard Ramirez last fall, he said. The county has been using the system on a trial basis and has cleared 19 cases.

"It goes without saying that this is one of the most exciting programs we've been able to participate in," said board Chairman Robert Hammock, before the board's unanimous vote to implement the program.

NEC Information Systems Inc. will sell the county the computer equipment which will be connected to the state's main computer, according to the sheriff. Because the two-county local authority has in excess of 1.5 million residents, it qualifies for 70 percent state funding of the $777,000 computer mainframe, Tidwell said.

He said 12 San Bernardino County cities also have voted to join in the authority and will pay dues to use the system.

LLR waste dump may be located in county

By Andrew Horan

A Kentucky firm plans to build a low-level radioactive (LLR) waste dump on one of 16 proposed desert sites - 11 of which are in San Bernardino County.

The closest, near Barstow, is more than 60 miles from the West Valley.

But 13 of the sites could require truckers to carry LLR waste through the area on the San Bernardino and Devore Freeways, according to information provided by US Ecology.

US Ecology's $12 million dump would handle all 250,000 cubic feet of LLR waste generated annually by California manufacturers and medical

Scheduled to open in 1992, the dump would receive only solid waste, according to Steve Romano, US Ecology's California project manager.

"California generates more (LLR waste) than all the other states west of the Mississippi combined," Romano said in a phone interview from his Newport Beach office.

The initial dump sites were chosen after a preliminary geographic study, he said.

Mature adults may find value in this grab bag

By Leonard J. Hansen Copley News Service

Here is a grab bag - ideas, news and notes that might be of real value to you as a mature adult. We've discovered some ourselves; we have been told of some and some have long been favorites that should be shared.

Protection from crime There are two fine books on the subject of personal and property protection from crime, and both are published in conjunction with national organizations for senior citizens.

'Protection Made Easy," by Warren J. Lucas is a 144-page paperback available through the National Alliance of Senior Citizens. In 10 chapters the book addresses, in an easy to understand style, methods and equipment for protection from and the avoidance of crime. Here are hints that include sure locks for doors and windows, to protecting your car and the avoidance of the incidence of crime for yourself. "Protection Made Easy" is available for $5 postpaid, from the National Alliance Of Senior Citizens, 2525 Wilson Rd., Arlington, VA 22201. Mention this column in your note to gain this low price.

'Keeping Out Of Crime's Way" is subtitled, "The Practical Guide For People Over 50," and is published by AARP - The American Association of Retired Persons - and Scott, Foresman and Co. The 143-page paperback is authored by J.E. Persico, professional writer with George Sutherland, chief of criminal justice services of AARP. In addition to presenting positive recommendations for crimeproofing of your residence, auto and other property, the book centers on fraud and how not to be the victim of a charlatan. The guidebook is practical and should be available through your local bookstore or library. Price for this book is $6.95. For information on "Keeping Out of Q: I am receiving SSI and was thinking about moving to St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands. Would I be able to receive my SSI check there? — L.G.

A: No. One of the basic requirements is that an eligible individual must reside in one of the 50 states, Washington, D.C., or Northern Mariana Islands.

Q: I married my second husband in December 1974. Three years and nine months tater he deserted me. For three vears I had no idea where he was. Hater made contact with him but things didn't work out. I finally divorced him in January 1985, and no longer hear from him. Since we now are both 65, could I receive Social Security from him? I have his Social Security number. - R.E.B.

A: Yes. It is possible that you could be entitled as a divorced spouse on your ex-husband's record, inasmuch as you were married for more than 10 years. Contact your local Social Security office. It will be necessary for you to submit proof of your age and proof of marriage and divorce.

Q: Since the death of my son and daughter-in-law in a car accident, I have cared for their child. I soon will retire. Can the child receive benefits on my record? - P.D.

A: If the natural parents of a child are either deceased or disabled, it is possible to pay benefits on the grandparent's record. Your grandchild must have been living with and receiving one-half support from you for the entire year before your entitlement to Social Security benefits. Contact your nearest Social Security office for additional information.

Avoiding osteoporosis

"Osteoporosis is a preventable disease," so states medical expert, Dr. Cyril Wecht, who worked with Total Communication Systems and the Well Care Center in developing a special exercise program for the prevention of the disease in mature women. "Healthy bones depend on a delicate balance of many factors. The primary requirements include proper diet with adequate vitamins and minerals and appropriate exercise.

"Halt Osteoporosis - Osteo-Cise" is the title of the exercise and health program presented on videotape cassette. Wecht used as a basis for the program concepts developed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to counteract the excessive bone-mass loss experienced by astronauts during and after weightlessness. Defined as a weight-bearing program to slow down the bonethinning process that can result in osteoporosis, Osteo-Cise has been endorsed by a panel for the National Institute of Health.

The videocassette prices at $39.95, plus $2 for postage and handling and is available for total communication systems, 701 Alpha Drive, Pittsburgh, PA 15238. Pennsylvania residents need add $2.40 for state sales TCS, on request, will supply a catalog of health and wellness videocassettes. When ordering, specify VHS or Beta.

Seeking baby book pages

In 1928, a new kind of record and scrapbook was published by The Mother's Aid of Chicago Lying-In Hospital, and through the years it has become an institution for hundreds of thousands of parents.

'Our Baby's First Seven Years" was created to be a comprehensive baby book which guided parents in recording their child's physical, psychological and social growth, as well as a collection point for favorite personal memoirs and mementos.

Now the publisher of "Our Baby's First Seven Years" is looking to you who might have used the books in the early years to chronicle the birth and growth of your child or children - and they're offering prizes for the best pages.

Americans who have filled-in copies of "Our Baby's First Seven Years" can submit four to 10 photocopied pages to enter the contest. Photoopied pages which show some photographs will have the best chances with the judges. Cash prizes of $200 each will be awarded for winners from these eras: 1929-39; 1940-49: 1960-69 and 1970 to the present. Additional merchandise prizes will be awarded, according to the sponsor/ publisher.

Deadline for this contest is Oct. 30, 1986, with prize notification to be accomplished by Feb. 1, 1987. For information or entry write: "Our Baby's First Seven Years", Growing Up In America Contest, 584 Maryand Ave., - MH445, Chicago, IL

Carol DeChant, spokeswoman for the sponsoring organization, expressed great hope for entries from the earliest years of "Our Baby's First Seven Years." It will be a greet look at our families of the 20s and 30s," Perhaps if you used this book for your children, you'll want to join the contest.

Parkinson misdiagnosis

If a patient in the progressing stages of Parkinson's disease fails to respond to anti-Parkinson medication, the disease just might have been misdiagnosed in the first place by the doctor. The bold statement comes from the United Parkinson Foundation. "Instead of Parkison's disease the patient might have an affliction commonly called 'Parkinsonplus,' a term referring to several very rare neurological disorders such as Progressive Supranuclear Palsy, Shy-Drager syndrome and calcification of the basal ganglia.

Because the early symptoms appear very much like classical Parkinson's disease, many clinicians misdiagnose them. Moreover, standard anti-Parkinson medications are useful in these disorders' very early stages, but tend to lose effectiveness as the illnesses progress," according to Harold L. Klawans, M.D., president of the Chicago-based national foundation

Firstborns not always the brightest in famil

By Willard Abraham Copley News Service

Q. I seem to have heard or read somewhere that the eldest child is often the brightest one in the family. It definitely isn't true in ours, and I wonder how common that development is. A little light on this subject might be interesting.

A. The implication of your interest leads to a key point related to research: No matter how strong the conclusion is in any piece of research it doesn't mean that it applies to all elements or subjects used in it.

Just because there appears to be a higher incidence of brightness among the firstborns does not mean that factor applies to all families. In fact, there can be (and are) mentally retarded children also among the eldest.

The reasons for the higher incidence of brightness may relate to many issues, including genetics. Also, because the eldest was at one time an only child, he or she perhaps received more parental attention, conversation and time than other children in the family.

Q. My husband and I have a disagreement over what may really be a "non-issue." Let me try it out on you to see what you think

He and I went to an open house held at the beginning of the school year, and met the teachers of our two children. Both teachers were new to us, and we really had a chance only to see them briefly and hear a few of their comments before the group of parents. Both seemed to welcome a classroom visit or two by parents during the year. I went a few times to each teacher, but my husband didn't.

He feels strongly that schools are for children and their teachers, with no parental interference. I don't see a visit to the school as "interference." In fact, it appears to me that a teacher can do a better job with a child if he or she knows something about a youngster. Parents, as biased as they may be, are a good source of information.

So I want to visit. He doesn't, and even resents my doing so.

Which side are you on? A. Because I believe that good education has to be a partnership between school and home, with each having some insight into what takes place at the other, it doesn't appear to me that parental visits to school or teacher visits to the home are interference. They can be, of course, but if each partner keeps the basic objective in mind - to improve the education of a particular child - and retains an attitude of helpfulness and professionalism, the youngster is the one who can benefit.

Visits in either direction can be overdone in frequency or length, but that doesn't seem to be the point behind your question. An occasional contact and a willingness to give pertinent information. ask questions, and discuss student strengths and weaknesses all appear to be fair game for concerned parents.

Q. I have a nephew whose wife recently had a baby who is deformed. Although I have seen the baby only once, it seems to be a facial and head deformity (not a cleft palate).

They apparently don't know what to do about it because they seem to have done nothing.

I feel close to them and really want to help, but I don't want to interfere in their lives. A. The information you gave isn't really complete; but if your relationship with them is good, there are some steps you can take.

If they actually have "done nothing," a visit with the baby to their pediatrician or family physician seems appropriate.

Where to find patterns for Western-style clothing

By Betty W. Kinser Copley News Service

Dear Betty: I read your column quite often and think your ideas are great. My problem is that I can't find Western patterns. Is there somewhere I can get a catalog to order Western patterns for men, women and children? I would truly appreciate any addresses you have. - Patti Clark, Madison,

I have a few for you, Patti (in no particular order): Folkwear Ethnic Patterns. P.O. Box 3798, San Rafael, CA 94902; Jean Harey Western Patterns, 2151 La Cuesta Dr., Santa Ana, CA 92705; Kwik-Sew Pattern Co., 3000 Washington Ave. N., Minneapolis, MN 55411; and Lola Gentry Patterns, Box 97, Dell City, TX 79837.

would suggest writing to each of these companies about the price of their catalogs. Please include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. It will speed up a

By the way, just this week I received something wonderful from Kwik-Sew: the latest issue of their home catalog in which they feature three pattern styles for men's Western shirts and six for women's square dance dresses. Their list of lingerie and knit-wear patterns is endless. A gold mine, readers.

To receive your copy of the Kwik-Sew Home Catalog, send $3 ($2 for catalog, $1 for handling) to the above address (this is a new address, so make note), along with your name and address. Tell them Betty Kinser sent

A home catalog is valuable, not only as a "wish book," but as a handy pre-shopping guide. At your leisure, you can study the patterns and make your determination before you truck off to the fabric store. Think of the time it saves you - and the mistakes it keeps you from making. Most major pattern companies make these catalogs available through fabric shops or the mail.

Runner wants to hook people on aerobic fix

By Jack Williams Copley News Service

In a society where addictions are regarded as no less a threat to one's well-being than a communicable disease, Dr. Art Mollen is trying to create an epidemic of addicts. Give him 30 days, he insists, and he'll have you so hooked on your daily aerobic fix that you'll suffer terminal withdrawal without it.

"It takes 30 days to create a positive addiction," Mollen said recently. "If you exercise each day for 30 days and stop, you'll experience anxiety, fatigue, insomnia and irritability. You know something is going on in your body.

Mollen, a chronically upbeat 41-year-old osteopath and radio talk-show host in Phoenix, Ariz., speaks from experience. He has completed 31 marathons (best time: three hours, 20 minutes) and five triathlone, the result of a regimen of two hours of training per day - swimming, biking and lifting weights.

"Two hours per day," he says, is what I need to function at my

"For others, 10 minutes per day can produce a significant change. I agree that 20 or 30 minutes of aerobic exercise are optimal for cardiovascular fitness, but for a person who has abused his body and has been inactive for years, give him something simple and pragmatic.

"Even on 10 minutes per day. you can promote cardiovascular fitness and raise your metabolism 10 percent to 20 percent for the next six to eight hours.

Medically, Mollen is more motivator than innovator, spouting his Mollenisms to anyone who seeks a healthier body - including more than 10,000 who have embraced the Mollen Method in his Southwest Health Institute in Phoenix.

On the back of his new book - "The Mollen Method" (Rodale Press) - he invites you to "call me for a dose of 'Mollenium' 1-602-BODY-4-86." Callers get a 60to 90-second message that, he hopes, may change their lives. "At the Health Institute," he said, "50 percent of the patients need to lose weight; the other 50 percent are using diet and exercise to treat disease.

"The diet I give them starts them with 5 percent fat the first week. Because they're gung-ho when they start out, they're usually able to comply. I increase the fat to 10 percent the next week, then 15 percent, then 20 percent - which is still half the amount of fat in the average American's diet.

"I never let the calories get below 1,000 per day because you need a certain amount to keep the fire (metabolism) going." This - plus a daily dose of aerobic exercise designed to elevate the heartbeat to 70 percent of its capacity - is supplemented by a monetary incentive.

A patient who loses weight doesn't have to pay when he visits Mollen for subsequent diet consultations and weigh-ins.

"In one year," he said, "my patients lost a total of 2,000 pounds and I lost $20,000 in patient revenue." A small fee to pay, he reasons, for his credibility and reputation as a pied piper of health and fitness.

Besides, if Mollen had his way, most physicians would be out of business.

"In the 21st century," he tells you, "medicine will be practiced by the individual instead of by the physician. People will be taking responsibility for their own health.'

acknowledges, who are reluctant to do so - steeped, as they are, in a mentality that regards medical advice as the last word. There are those, too, who turn a deaf ear to Mollen's exercise evangelism.

'My failures," he said, "have been among people who were most resistant to exercise. For those people, the very sedentary, I might suggest a minitrampoline. In 14 to 16 minutes of jumping around they can burn 100 calories in front of the TV every night - and have fun doing it. Unless exercise represents enjoyment or a goal, unless it's positive reinforcement, people won't do "You have to introduce it in small, palatable doses. It has to be easy and fun. None of this 'no pain, no gain' myth."

Mollen said that he bases his exercise addiction theories on research by psychologists and feedback from his own patients. 'It's been documented," he said, "that it takes 21 days to develop a negative addiction, such as drugs, tobacco or alcohol."

While the positive addiction takes longer, Mollen acknowledges, it requires a minimal dose of 10 minutes. "I gradually increase it again to 20 or 30 minutes per day," he said.

Mollen's positive addiction theory stems from the writings of William Glasser, who in his 1976 book, "Positive Addiction," distinguished negative habits from those that are thought to promote psychological strength and increase life satisfaction. He insisted that compulsive behavior could be healthy - if channeled in the right direction. Mollen seeks to cultivate that compulsiveness by encouraging morning exercise. Those who follow a morning regimen, he said, are more consistent and faithful than others.

I've found the compliance to be 75 percent in the morning." said Mollen, "50 percent at noon and 25 percent in the evening.

"They have fewer excuses in the morning than at the end of the day, and if they do it in the morning they'll have more energy and a more positive feeling all day. "But the biorhythms of some people just won't permit them to do anything in the morning. For them - less than 10 percent of the population - later is best."

For his part, Mollen rises at 5:30 each weekday morning. After stretching his 5-foot-9-inch, 155-pound body, he laces up a pair of running shoes and runs for an hour, usually at a leisurely pace on forgiving dirt surfaces. The next hour is devoted to stationary cycling and lifting the free weights in his Phoenix home.

By 9:30 in the evening, he is ready for some well-deserved sleep.

Such a regimen, combined with a low-fat and meatless diet. has kept Mollen's cholesterol at an exemplary 130 and reduced his body fat to 8 percent. He was 25 pounds heavier, with a cholesterol level in the danger zone (275), after his discharge from the Air Force 13 years ago before giving up fried foods and red meat and launching a regular exercise program.

"When I started running back in '73," said Mollen, "I ran 2 miles as fast as I could in hightop tennis shoes. I didn't like it. I figured there had to be a way to like it, so I slowed down, to about 75 percent to 80 percent of max, and ran longer distances.

"I've found that I can avoid injury by not pushing to my limits. I don't work out so intensely that I build up so much lactic acid that I have to rest my muscles the next day.
